

The Battle of neighborhoods: exploring Swedish cities

Thailand is not suitable for raising children

- Thailand in recent years has seen many unpleasant situation
- Air Quality Index (AQI - left fig.) has been unhealthily high. Average up to 160 in winter (WHO recommended level below 50)
- Teacher quality in decline. Many student abuse cases reported and captured on tape
- Government taken over by soldier coup.

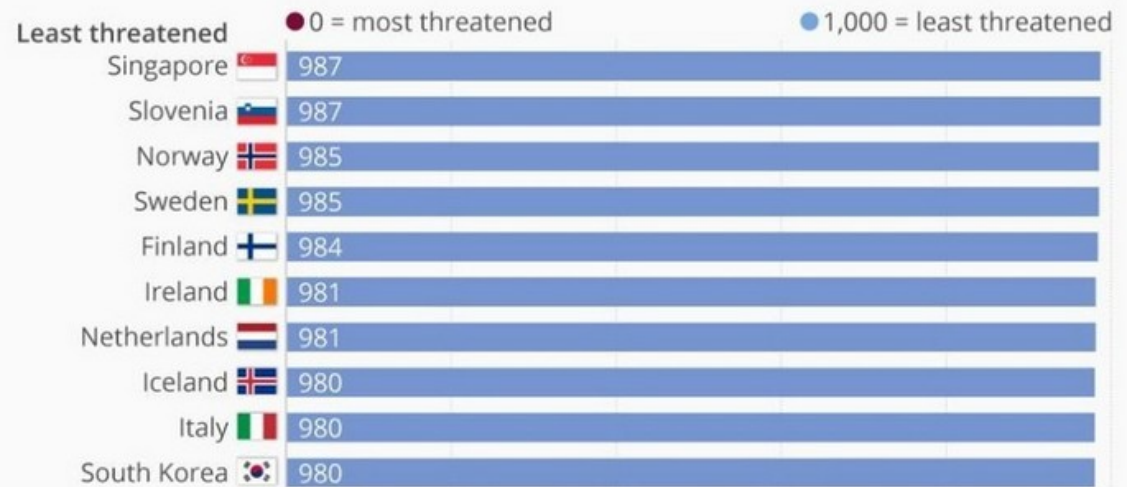

What is our alternatives?

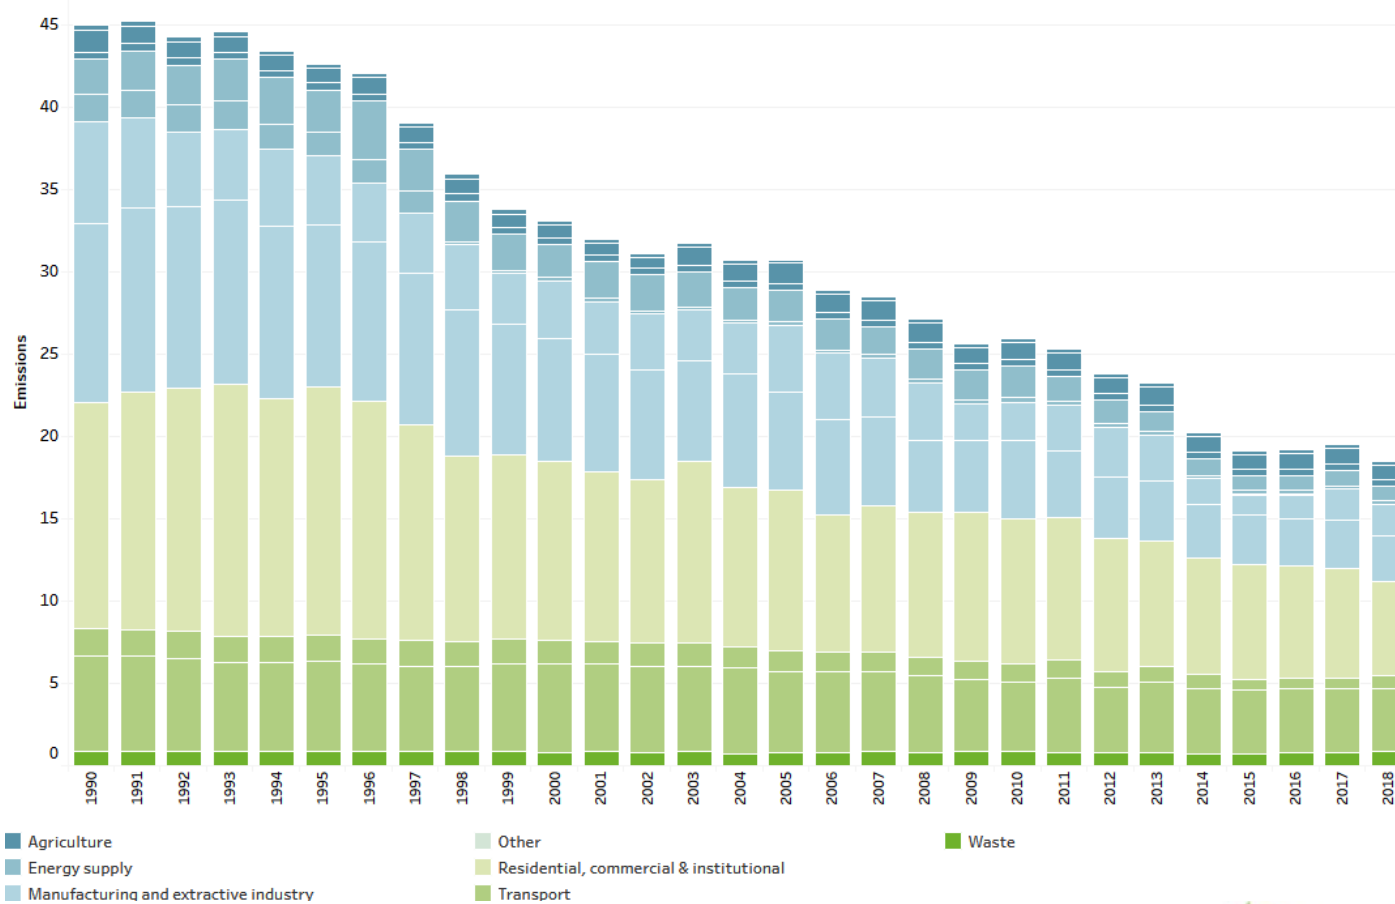

- Nordic countries rated very high in every happiness chart for young children
- Sweden is highly regard among Thai parents
- Right fig. source WorldEconomic.org

Schools location

All schools shown previously are all located within 5 cities where we will focus our exploration

- Stockholm
- Arsta
- Solna
- Upplands Väsby
- Malmö

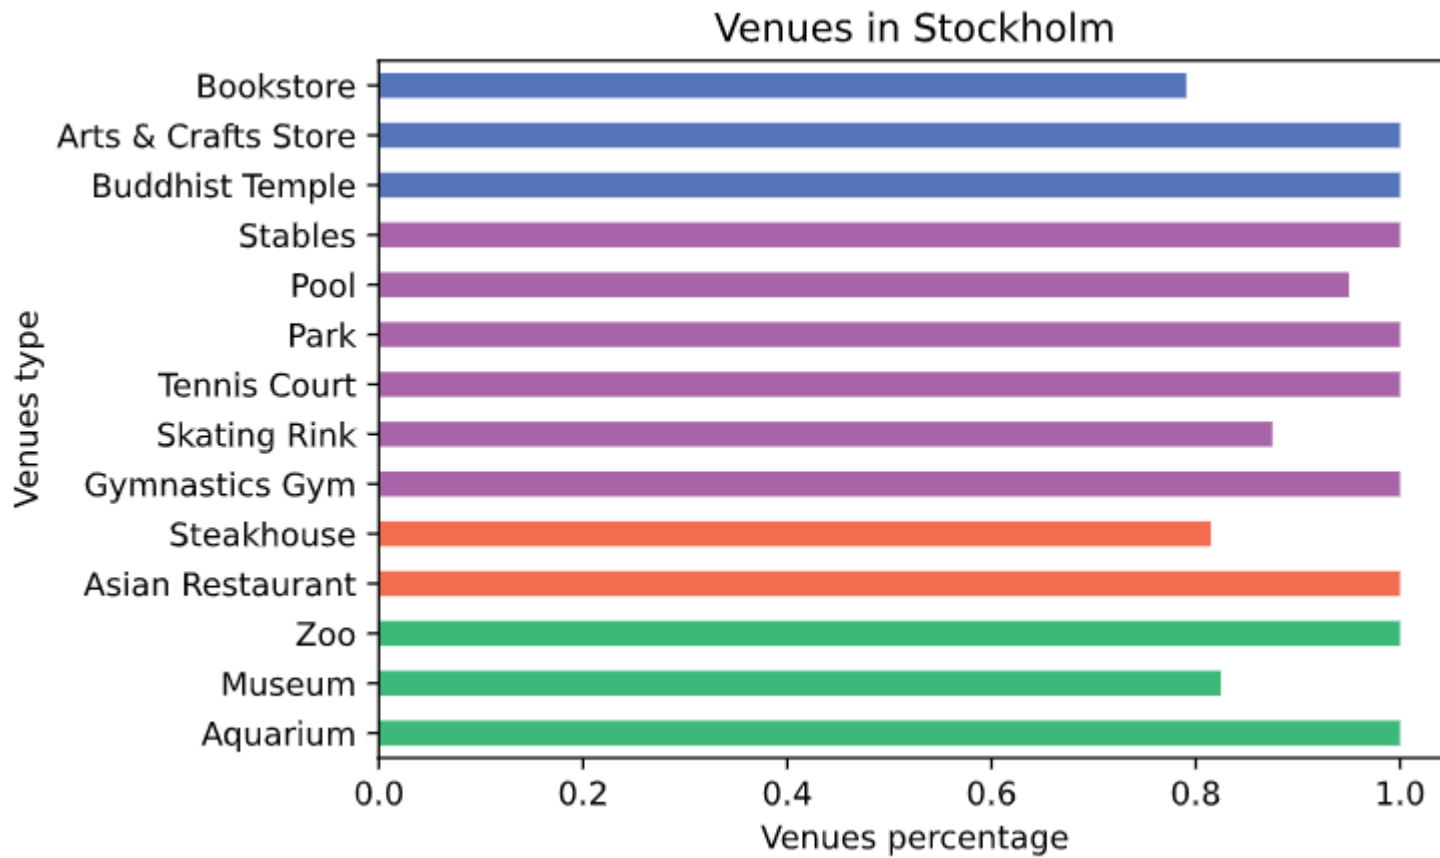

Key venues of interest

- Blue represents stores and temples which provides activity good for children's mental development
- Violet represents activities we are interested in
- Orange represents food we prefer
- Green represents leisuring places our children enjoy the most

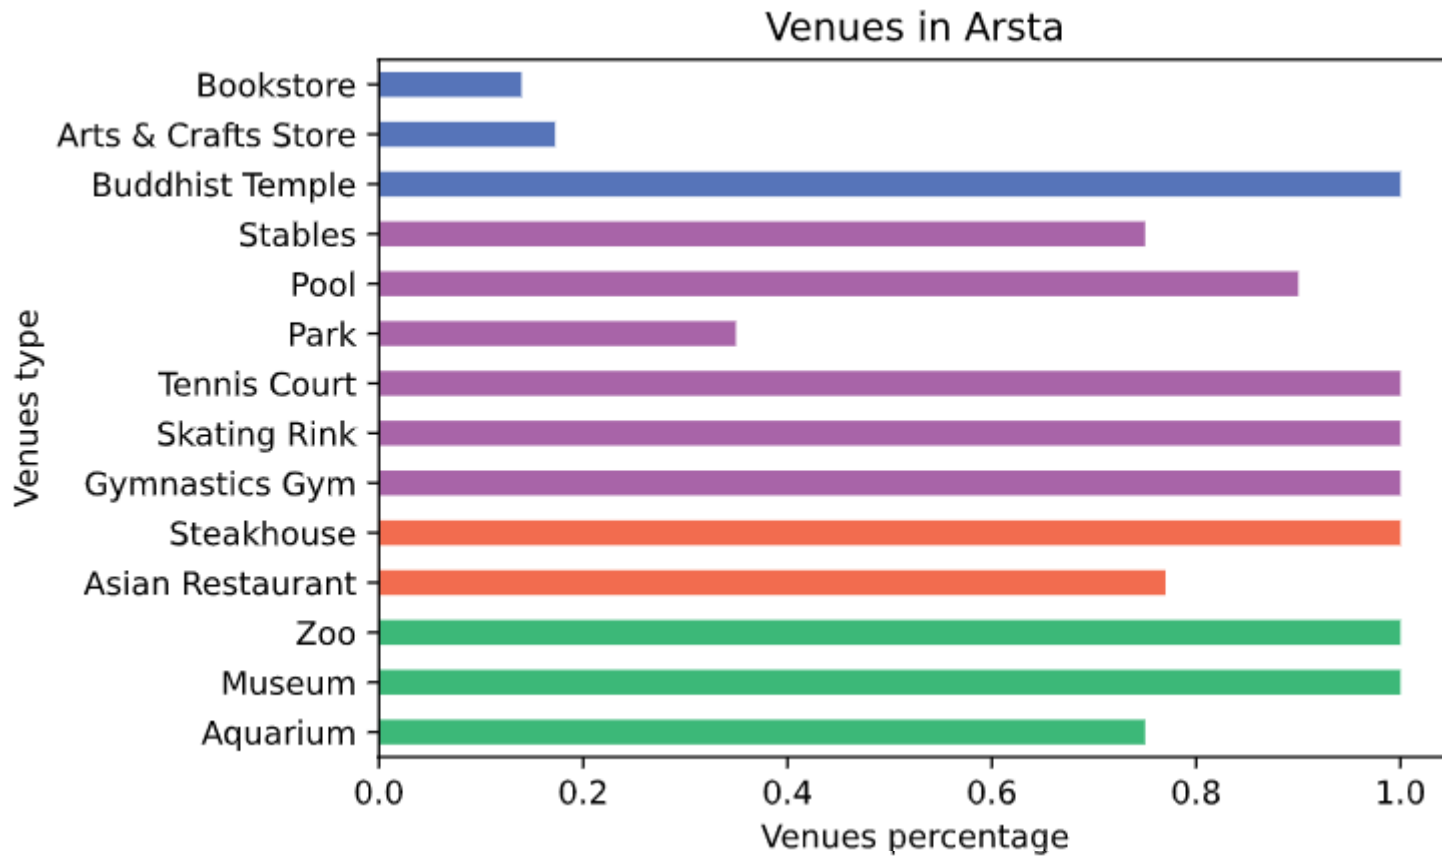

Ideal candidate should offer at least 1 of each venue. Having more has no impact on our consideration.

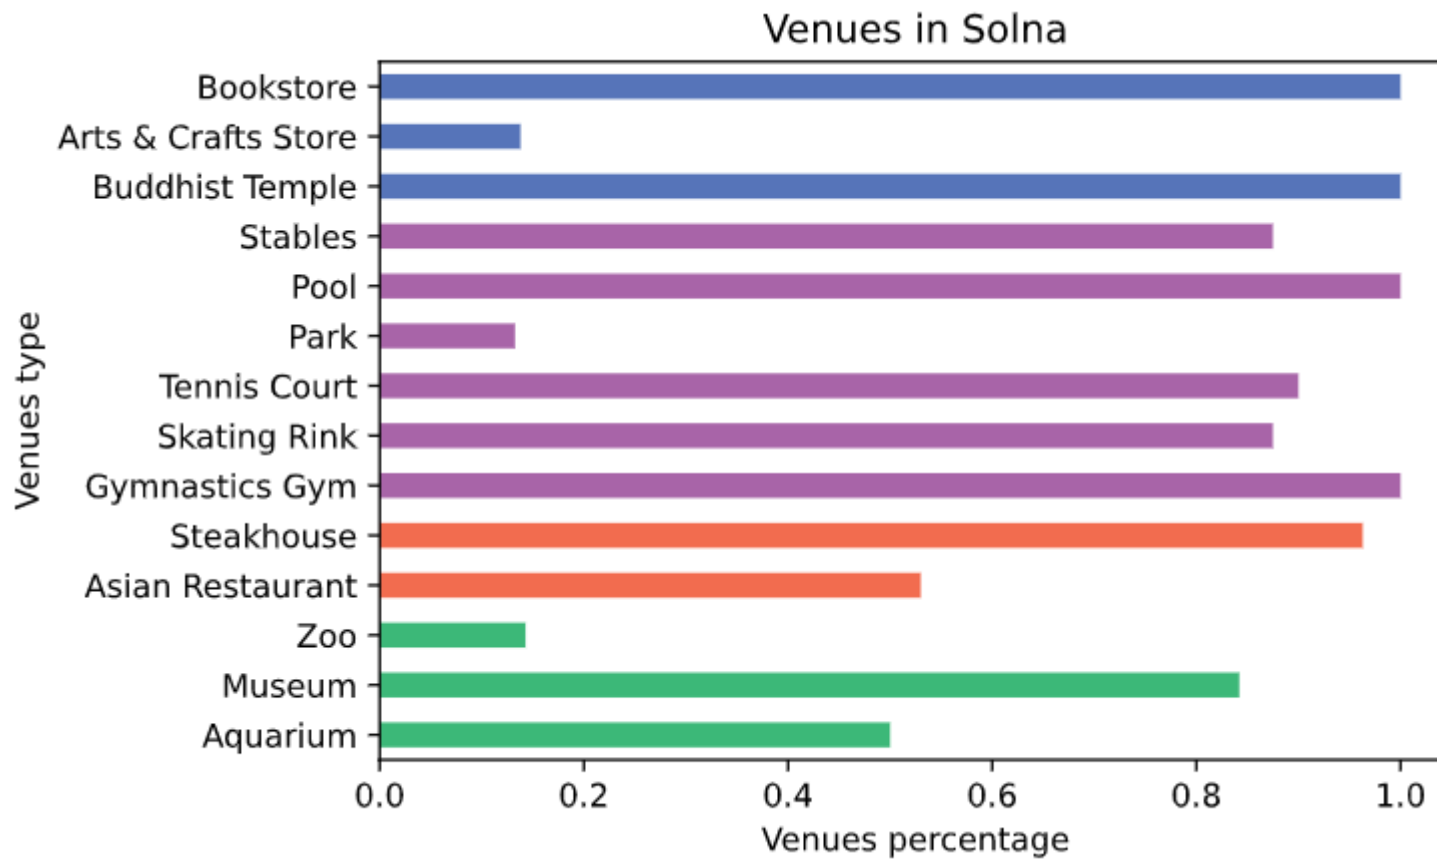

Stockholm

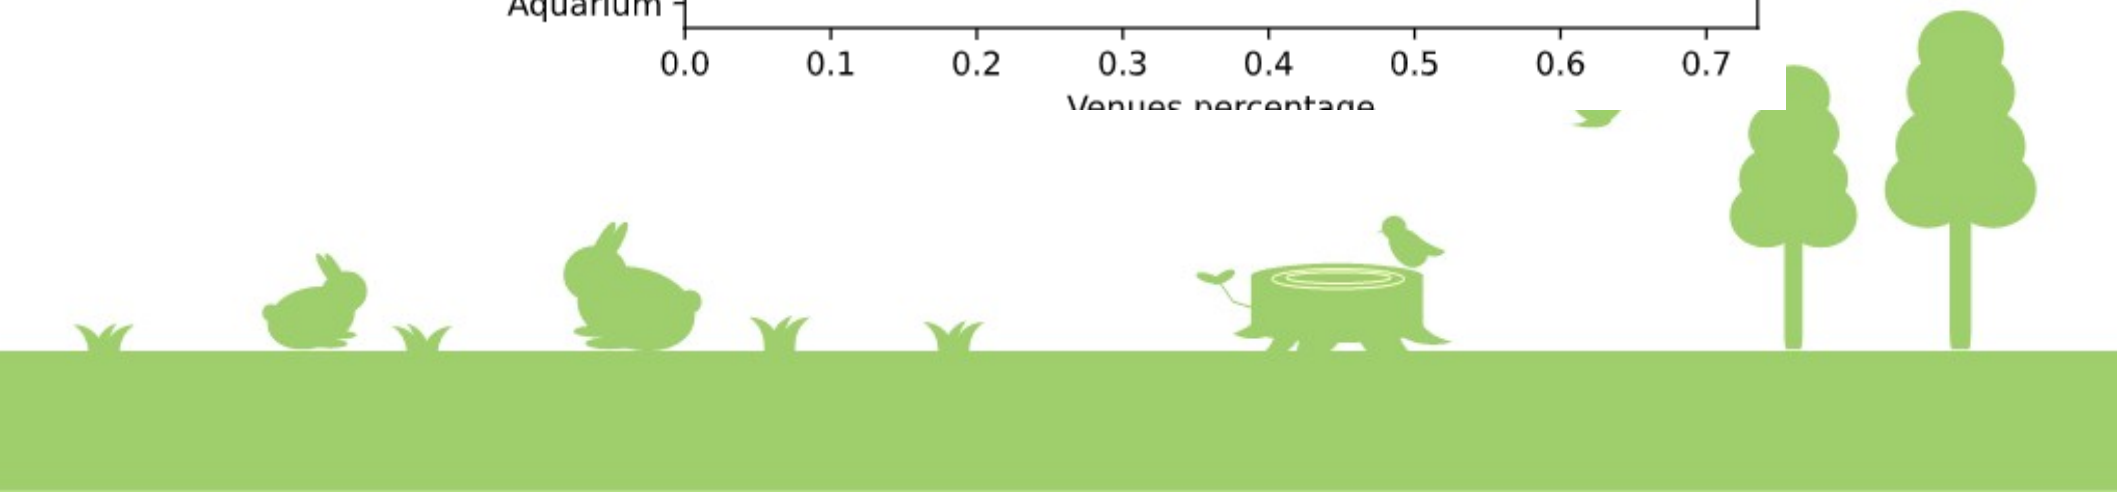

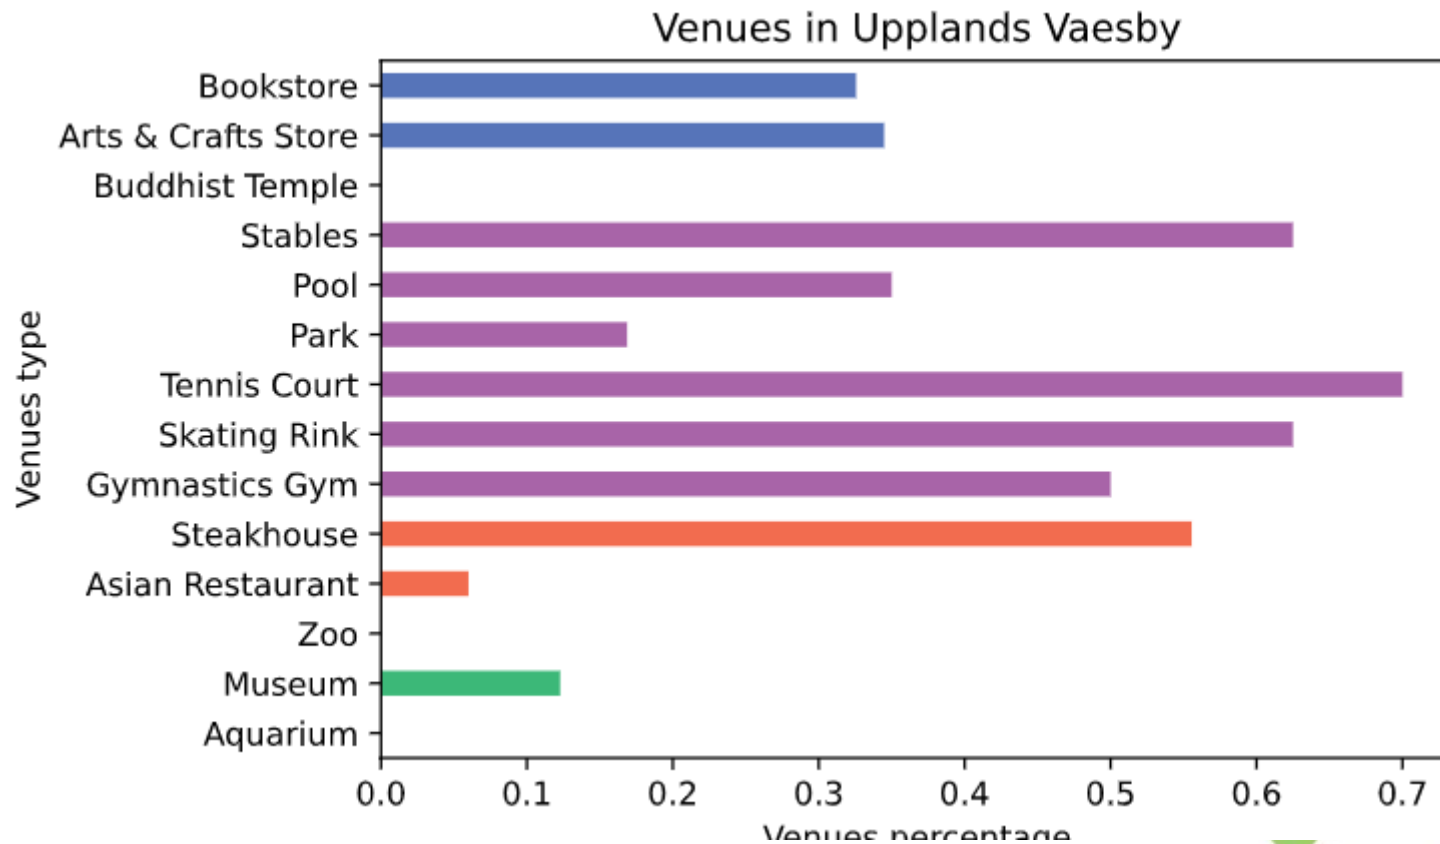

Astra

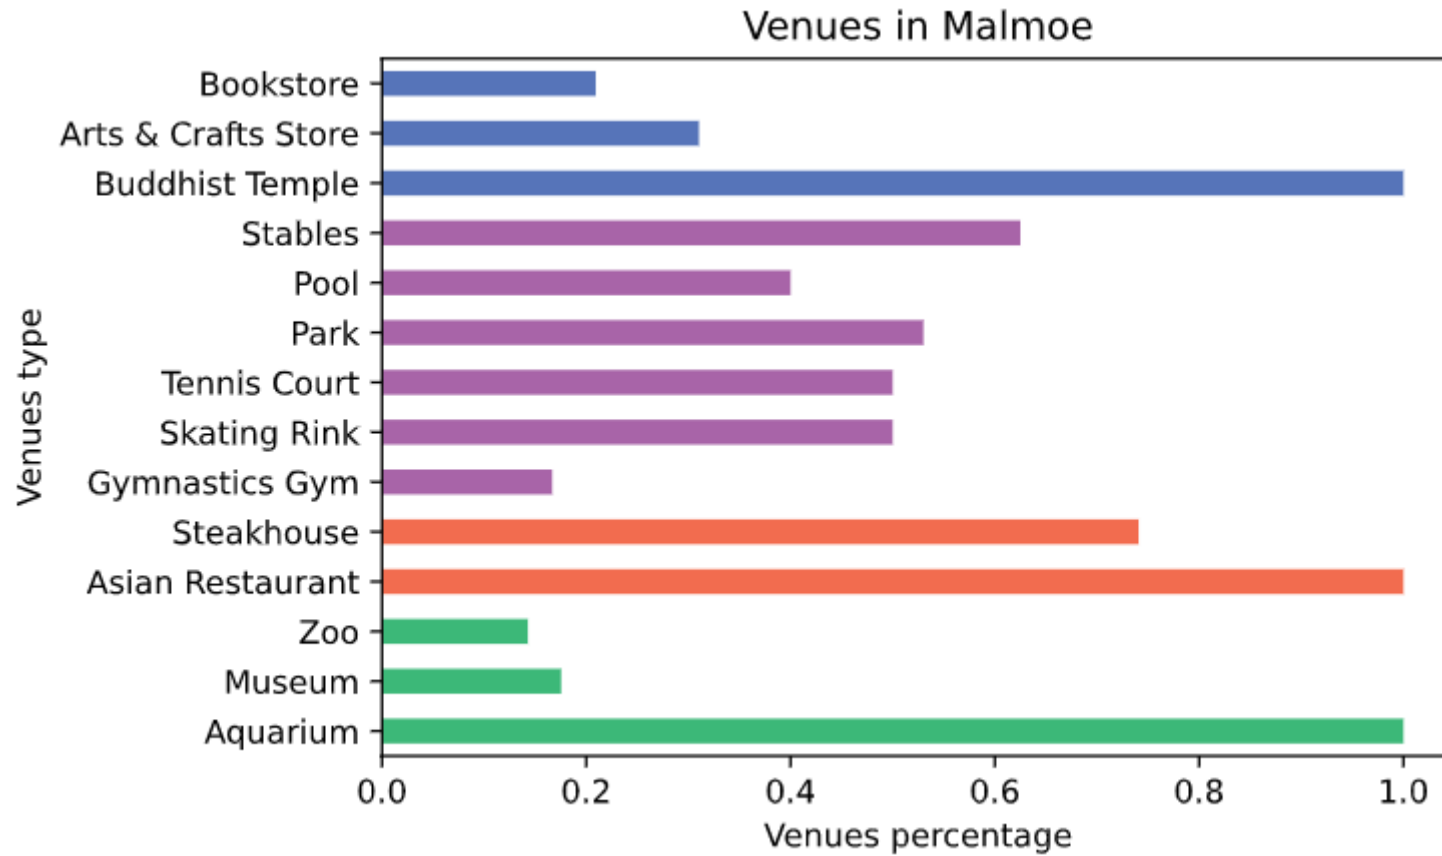

Solna

Upplands Vaesby

Malmoe

Conclusion

- With the exception of Upplands Väsby, all 4 cities contain at least 1 venue of our preference
- The plentiful venues of Stockholm makes it the ideal candidate
